The foundation of the Albanian Neuroradiological Society in 2006 was the natural answer to the many scientific and cultural inputs generated by the fertile European neuroradiological milieu and specially by the Italian one.

After the radical political and social changes of the past 15 years, the Albanian society and above all, the Albanian intellectual community, felt the pressing necessity to build up newer and stronger relationships with the international cultural and scientific community, in order to regain the lost time...

The purpose of the newborn Albanian Neuroradiological Society is to create and spread out a new scientific neuroradiological space, in a fast changing and growing up medical and social context as the one Albania is living on actually. The training of young albanian neuroradiologists, the diffusion of the neuroradiological culture and the efforts aiming at a firmer professional identity, represent some of the most important targets of ANRS.

The connatural enthusiasm accompanying the birth of this Scientific Society does not mitigate the sense of responsibility and the awareness of a hard path.

During his long and difficult path the newborn Albanian Neuroradiological Society will rely on experience and help of the other similar european societies and above all will rely on help and experience of the European Society of Neuroradiology.

The Albanian Neuroradiological Society wants to avail the opportunity to sincerely thank the Italian Society of Neuroradiology, Associazione Italiana di Neuroradiologia, for his important contribution on steering the Albanian neuroradiological thinking.

The Albanian Neuroradiological Society wants to make one's conscious contribution to a larger intellectual and cultural project, in order to help the Albanian society to regain her place in the huge European family.

A place that albanian intellectuals are aware to be able to deserve...
